A ROSY FUTURE. That is What's Coming to Boralma, Says Lawson.

Although in all likelihood out of racing forever because of his accident at Hartford last Saturday, Boralma's future is a rosy one, according to his owner.
"Boralma's racing career was probably forever ended by his accident," says Thomas W. Lawson. "Anyway, he is on his way to Dreamworld, where we will endeavor for the balance of his life—and may its length be commensurate with his pluck, beauty and intelligence, if it is, he will live to be over 100, yes a thousand—to see that he has the reddest clover tops, the greenest blades of grass and the fastest, juiciest oats, with no end of getting to season their eating and digestion."
"I leave to others, those myriads of intelligent horsemen, to explain what he would have done had things been different. To me he is no different, nor will he ever be, than if he had won the Lord Derby and every other race."
"I early found it was impossible in the trotting-horse game, as it is conducted, for the best horse to receive even equal treatment with the poorer ones in the regular races; that is, I found that it necessarily followed that the best horse would be combined against through the system of laying up heats. This is my only excuse for Boralma's match races."
"I knew, or thought I knew, the dangers which attended match races where large sums were involved."
"As to the balance of my racing stable, Mary P. Leyburn, Pointedexter and the others, they are all on their way to Dreamworld, where I trust they will enjoy themselves in those plain old-fashioned ways that prevail upon the farm and that what they lose in the excitement of being beaten by horses that are second-class (as for instance, Mary P. Leyburn at Detroit, where the horse that trotted the race two seconds slower was called her victor), they will make up in indolence and farm ease."
"Mr. Marsh, who put in such good work training the stable, and who made such heroic efforts with Boralma, has been given a well earned vacation at Dover for the balance of the season."

NEXT MONDAY. Date When New Trolley Line Between Concord, Manchester and Nashua Will Be Opened.

On Monday, August 11, the electric line between Concord, Manchester and Nashua will be opened for service. President Tuttle and Assistant General Manager Frank Barr of the Boston and Maine made a thorough inspection of the line on Friday and pronounced it complete for operation.
In response to a public wish that electrical communication be established between the cities mentioned, along the easterly bank of the Merrimack river, the Boston and Maine undertook the work, it having been given the franchise in preference to several other parties who were desirous of building the line. Construction began about a year ago, and has continued since that time without interruption. The length of the road is eighteen miles, and its building has been carried on with all the attention to detail that is given to the roadbed of a steam railroad. There were used seventy-two and seventy-six pound T rails.
The new line will be superintended by H. A. Albin, while P. E. Brown, assistant general passenger agent of the Boston and Maine, will have immediate charge of the traffic department, at the same time retaining his present title. There is to be hourly service between Concord and Manchester and half-hourly trips between Pleasant street, Concord, and the hospital on the outskirts of that city.

Brodeur, principal state normal school, Westfield, Mass.; James E. Klock, principal state normal school, Plymouth.

THE TERRIBLE UNDERTOW.

The drowning at Old Orchard, yesterday, of three persons, following so closely upon the drowning of two women at Hull last week, both calamities being attributed to the strength of the treacherous undertow sweeping the bathers from their feet, should serve as a warning that bathing in the unprotected sea, where winds and tides have free course, is a peril that should not be risked without ample means of protection at hand. The undertow is a current under the surface running in a different direction from the surface water. It gives no warning of its existence to the inexperienced. It is not constant, and may be very strong one day in places where there was none the day before. A result of conditions that cannot always be observed or calculated, it is often unsuspected. The first knowledge of it one may have is the sense of being swept off one's feet if wading, or of being torn away or sucked down in spite of one's best efforts in swimming. It is especially hazardous for persons to venture out of shallow water unless there are ready and watchful boat men near to rescue them if in peril. To venture into a heavy surf without experienced guides is always foolhardy.—Boston Herald.

NEW HAMPSHIRE LEAGUE.

"A great strong effort will be made next year to break that 10-years contract. Faint reports are heard hereabouts of a scheme to change the name and shut out everything north of Lowell. The first impression one gets of that kind of project is that it is silly."—Lowell Mail. If the scheme goes, a New Hampshire league would make money next season with teams in Manchester, Nashua, Concord, Dover, Portsmouth, Laconia, Franklin and Exeter, the last named club to play most of its games at Hampton Beach and Canobie lake.—Concord Monitor.

THIRD FUNERAL IN FAMILY.

George W. Philbrook and family went to Portsmouth today to attend the funeral of his father, D. S. Philbrook, of that city. This is the third funeral that he has been called to attend there within a short time. Three weeks ago he buried a sister and six weeks ago a cousin died. Mr. Philbrook, who was buried today, was eighty years of age the day before he died, and his death is the first to occur in the house where he resided for over fifty years. —Dover Democrat.

VESUVIUS DOCKED.

Secretary Moody Looks Over Dynamite Cruiser, and Will Probably Decide Soon What to Do With Her.

The dynamite cruiser Vesuvius was docked Friday afternoon at the Boston navy yard for the purpose of cleaning her underbody. She has been lying out of commission at the navy yard for some time, and was docked yesterday only because the regulations require that a vessel shall be docked at least once in nine months if possible.
Secretary Moody looked her over just before leaving the yard Friday on the Dolphin, and when he returns to Washington will probably do something toward deciding what shall be done with her. The cruiser was a spectacular feature of the Spanish war, but it was considered by all that she was nothing else but a spectacle. It is not improbable that she will either be consigned to the scrap heap some day in the near future or else have her three dynamite guns removed and made into a gunboat for scouting purposes.
For the purpose for which she was built she has proved a failure, and is regarded as in the same category as torpedo-boats—liable to cause more damage to the nation controlling her than to an enemy by being easily blown up. She represents an outlay of $350,000 by this government.

SALE DISAPPROVED.

Vatican Says Friars Cannot Sell Their Lands.

Rome, August 8.—The action of the Philippine friars in selling their lands to syndicates of laymen is disapproved at the Vatican. The lands are claimed to be church property, inalienable without the consent of Rome. An investigation indicates that the Dominicans alone sold their lands. When the sales are definitely ascertained the friars will be obliged to show the amount received by them and reimburse the church.

HAMPTON BEACH.

The second anniversary of the Vermont association was held at Hampton Beach Wednesday, but on account of unfavorable weather, the usual large number did not make the trip. It is needless to say that the one hundred and fifty that did come, enjoyed themselves. The bowling alley was the center of attraction. The party left for Manchester at six p. m.

The first party to arrive was a picnic from Hampton Falls made up of about seventy-five young people, all looking for a jolly good time. The next party was made up of the Old Fellows of Lowell. It took five cars to transport this happy crowd which comprised not only the members, but their wives and children. The last party to arrive was another large Sunday school picnic from Exeter. With this party was Gen. Albert H. Dow, treasurer of the Robinson Female Academy.

THE ELECTRICS WILL COME.

As a number of Newmarket people have predicted that the electric railroad to Newmarket would never be built, we can assure them that it will be. Sunday, while at Hampton Beach, we interviewed Wallace D. Lovell on that subject and he stated positively that the road would be built next spring and operated. He also said that possibly some work might be done on it this fall, if material could be purchased. In the car barn at Hampton are two new open cars lettered "Newmarket," which is also a pretty good indication that the company means business. It is safe to say that in a year from now, if not sooner, the electric road will be in operation.—Newmarket Advertiser.

VERY NUMEROUS.

The bird fanciers say that the yellow-billed cuckoo is very numerous this season. You can tell them by their cry. It very much resembles the cluck of the tree-frog. In England they call them rain-crows as their calling portends rain.

The call of the black-billed variety is much more like that of the English cuckoo than the yellow-billed and is noticeably sweeter and softer. The cuckoo is one of the most graceful birds—a long slender creature with a very long tail. They are greyish brown above and in the case of the yellow-billed variety, the lower mandible is yellow with white spots on the tail.

ADVERTISING.

There can be no doubt as to the value of personality in advertising. That great advance agent of modern publicity, P. T. Barnum, believed in personality and made it a factor in all of his mediums and methods. Not only was his advertising infused with the spirit of Barnum, but he rode in his parade every day, rain or shine, merely to let people see him. Personality is just as potent in the advertising of a cigar store or a candy kitchen. It can fall only when the person who attempts to use it is not a person at all. Real individuality can assert itself and always be upon the safe side.—Printer's Ink.

VALUABLE HORSE DEAD.

Dover, Aug. 8.—Pelag, the bay gelding, owned by Fred Clark of Providence, which started in the 2:28 trot at Granite State park yesterday, was distanced in the first heat, owing to a sudden attack of colic, died today. The horse was valued at $3500.

AN AMERICAN SONG BIRD.

Miss Mary Garden, Who Has Gained Laurels in Paris and London.

Following the examples of Nordica, Eames, Sanderson and other American singers, Miss Mary Garden has just taken the musical world of Europe by storm. Paris and London have signified their approval of the excellence of her voice and of her dramatic methods.

Miss Garden is a Chicago girl and is only twenty years of age. She has a slim, girlish figure, blue eyes and auburn hair. Her voice is a high soprano of intensely dramatic quality, and the best judges predict great things of her in the future.

Miss Garden studied in Paris for a few years before an emergency in the Opera Comique induced the director to call on her to sing a role on that well known stage. Her success was instantaneous.

A UNIQUE MONUMENT.

Confederate Dead Commemorated by a Union Veteran.

Near Columbus, O., in Camp Chase Confederate cemetery, has just been unveiled a unique monument. It is a memorial of the men who fought under the stars and bars, erected mainly through the efforts of a man who helped to make their struggle a lost cause. This man is Colonel William H. Knauss of Columbus.

Camp Chase cemetery contains the graves of 2,260 Confederate soldiers. The cemetery plot, which contains about two and a half acres, is on the site of a former prison for captured soldiers. The resting place of the dead

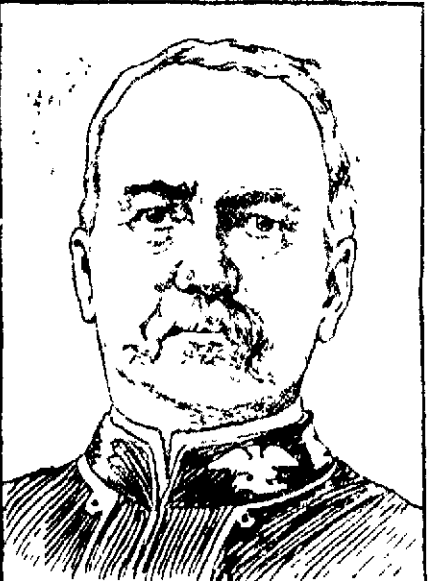

Union monument to Confederate dead southerners is marked by a huge boulder, and the new monument has been erected immediately above this. The memorial consists of a solid granite arch twelve feet high on which is inscribed in bold capitals the word "AMERICANS." Surmounting the arch is the statue of a Confederate soldier in full uniform.

WAR GAME UMPIRE.

Rear Admiral Cooper, Who Is to Judge Coast Maneuvers.

The "great war game" that is to be played at the eastern entrance to Long Island sound is divided into two parts—the attack on the forts commanding the entrance to the sound by the remainder of the floating forces and the land fortifications. Never before have maneuvers on so grand a scale been attempted in the United States, and the result is expected to demonstrate either the impregnable nature of the forts that defend New York and the sound, or the possibility of reduction by a hostile fleet.

Five judges of the "war game" have been appointed. Chief among them is Rear Admiral Philip Henry Cooper, who is associated with the command of the highest ability. Admiral Cooper has seen much service abroad and at home. His latest command was the Iowa, and he has recently been on special duty in connection with the Atlantic coast defense.

SILK CULTURE.

A Matter of Great Interest to Women of the United States.

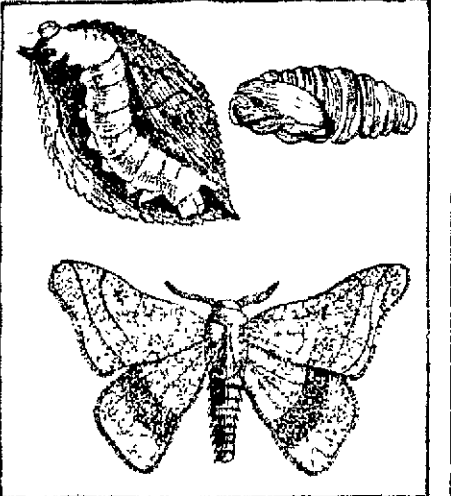

Can the production of raw silk be made profitable in this country? If it can, it will be a pocket money to millions of women and girls. The question has been a long time receiving an answer, for the Huguenot settlers around Charleston transplanted mulberry trees and brought silkworms from their native France fully two centuries ago. The industry flourished somewhat, and it sounds odd to be told that raw silk was among the exports of the southern states at one time. Now our silk manufacturers import annually $5,000,000 worth of raw silk, whereas in one year, a little more than a century ago, there was sent to Europe from Savannah, Ga., $75,000 worth of the same article. But then we had no silk mills in America, and one good black silk gown lasted a lady her lifetime.

To this day the children descendants of those old French Huguenots amuse themselves with rearing silkworms and making toy reels of shining, lustreous thread from the cocoons, but as a money getting occupation the business has died out.

Why it did so is hard to say. Some declare that the Revolutionary war killed the young industry, but so late as 1795 raw silk was exported from Savannah. Benjamin Franklin, too, who did so much else for his country, attempted to revive silk growing after the colonies became independent. At that time it was thought the worms could be made to live anywhere in this country. Connecticut established a bounty for those in the state who could show the best raw silk and the greatest quantity of it. So late as 1847 Connecticut women realized from the bounty and the proceeds of their industry $240,000. Then, in 1844, a killing frost came, the worms perished, and that, it is said, ended silk growing in Connecticut.

In an amateurish way women and children in various parts of the Union have continued to experiment with the worms. In Utah silk growing was one of the occupations Brigham Young endeavored to establish in order to make his hierarchy independent of all the world, and today many Mormon women actually make their own silk gowns at every step of the way, from the hatching of the worm that makes the cocoon to the spinning and weaving of the thread that forms the cloth. By the Mormon realm the industry has never been abandoned, and it was a lady from Utah who at the Chicago exposition of 1893 made the notable exhibit of the silk industry in every stage—moth, egg, worm, cocoon, silk reels, spindles and weaving looms as well as the mulberry trees, on whose leaves the worms feed while they spin their shrouds about themselves. Utah women are able to teach their sisters in other parts of the Union the mysteries of silk growing.

Following the Philadelphia exposition of 1876, congress made a small ap propriation for experimenting in the production of raw silk, but it does not appear that any large results have followed. The present United States secretary of agriculture, Mr. Wilson, has, however, taken the matter up with the energy he puts into other enterprises, and the silk growing prospect is brighter for this country now than it has been for a century.

To begin, Secretary Wilson investigated the matter of climate, the extremes of which in America are against the industry. The cold kills the worms even so far south as Charleston. In Japan, however, the cold is quite as great as it is in the middle and southern belt, yet it is one of the two greatest raw silk producing countries of the earth. The United States agricultural department has found that as far north as Philadelphia the silk cocoons can be grown with advantage. Further south there is no doubt they can be produced very cheaply by women in their own homes. The spare time in the intervals of housework would be sufficient for the work. It is likely, however, that at all except the most southerly states protection in winter will be necessary. Under cover and with warmth the worms can be reared anywhere. The agricultural department at Washington will be able to supply information as to where the beginner in silk growing can obtain instructions for cultivating worms.

The ordinary wild mulberry tree of this country will not produce the raw silk of commerce. The Chinese variety is the best for this purpose. But this is said that a worm will spin from the leaves of the common osage or hickory tree as fine and lustreous as any.

MAYBE THE NEXT POPE.

Leo XIII. Said to Prefer the New Prefect of the Propaganda.

To the post of prefect of the propaganda, one of the most important in the gift of the pope, his holiness has just appointed Cardinal Giuliano Gotti, in succession to the late Cardinal Ledochowski. It is believed by many that by this appointment Leo XIII. signified his desire that Cardinal Gotti should succeed him in the pontifical chair.

Like many of the princes of the Roman Catholic church, Cardinal Gotti is of extremely humble origin. He is now sixty-eight years old. He is of Genoese birth, and his father labored along the wharfs of the city. Through the devotion of his mother young Gotti was enabled to obtain an education under the Jesuit auspices. At sixteen he became a Carmelite monk, and it is said, none of that austere order exceeded him in ascetic devotion.

In 1881 Father Gotti became general of the Carmelite order. He early attracted the favorable attention of the present pontiff and has served the latter in a number of delicate and important missions. In 1892 Pope Leo sent him to Brazil to reorganize the church there, and on his return three years later Father Gotti received the red hat of a cardinal.

Cardinal Gotti is a man of engaging presence, a distinguished orator and a master of the French and Italian language. Despite the high position in the church of the new prefect of the propaganda, he continues to live the life of a Carmelite monk, sleeping in a cell on a hard mattress and subsisting on the plainest of fare.

NEW FILIPINO MONEY.

Design For the Island Currency Furnished by a Native.

To a native artist has been awarded the honor of designing the new coins that are to be used in the Philippine Islands. Pursuant to a provision in the bill for the civil government of the islands passed at the recent session of congress the government is to establish at Manila a plant for the minting of special coins, that are to take the place of the Mexican and Spanish money now in circulation in the archipelago.

A large number of designs for the new coins were received, among them being some from Rear Admiral Taylor. The award, however, was made to a Filipino named Figueroa, whose drawings were adjudged the most original and appropriate.

On the obverse of the plan submitted by Senor Figueroa appears a draped female figure with streaming hair. In her left hand, which rests gracefully on her bosom, there is a branch of myrtle, while in her right is grasped a hammer, which rests upon an anvil. In the background is a representation of Mayon, the largest volcano in the islands. This side of the coin bears the denomination and the word "Filipinas."

The reverse of the new coin is simple, bearing only an American shield, representing the original thirteen states. This is surmounted by an eagle with outstretched wings. Around the top are the words "United States of America," and at the base of the shield appears the date of coinage. On the obverse side, in small letters, just below the volcano, is the name of the designer.

HE TOOK THE CAKE.

A Story of William Black, the Novelist, and Mary Anderson.

One time when Mary Anderson was playing in "The Winter's Tale" in Dublin William Black, the novelist, who was very intimate with Miss Anderson and her family, insisted upon assuming the part of one of the supers, who was dressed as a very old man with a venerable beard and locks that fell upon his shoulders. When Black went upon the stage in this disguise, he walked about among his fellow supers with unceasing restlessness and, judging by the wild motions of his arms, seemed to be addressing to each in turn an impassioned harangue. The audience began to wonder who the new actor was and what on earth he was doing in a play in which neither Shakespeare nor the stage managers ever intended him to appear.

Presently came the time when it was the business of Perdita to distribute flowers among the peasants, among whom Black had his place. Miss Anderson, carrying on the practical jokes of the family circle, had prepared a surprise for this moment, and, having distributed flowers among the less favored supers, she handed to Black a large cake crowned with a wreath of laurel, saying as she did so, "You take it," in allusion to his triumphs in the contests of wits at the supper table.

To her consternation, Black showed that he was quite prepared to carry out the jest, for, taking the cake from the hands of Perdita, he immediately distributed it in substantial portions to his hungry fellow supers, who, finding it to be of excellent quality, began to munch it greedily under the eyes of the house.—Exchange.

A Kicking Horse.

A writer in the National Stockman gives this method of treating a kicking horse: Put on him a strong surcingle and crupper. Have one ring where the check book comes and one eight inches lower on the right side. Now run a strap from the lower ring to the crupper about where the hip strap passes through. Now take a five-eighths inch rope fifteen feet long, fasten it to the ring at the check and then hook through the ring in the halter and back through the lower ring in the surcingle. Strap up his left fore foot. This should be done in a straw yard. Now you have him ready. Take your rope and go ahead of him a few feet, a little to the right, and begin to pull. Hold him steady and let him fight it hard, but keep drawing his head to his side and he will go down to the ground. Now you have him where you want him. Show him you can do as you please with him. Keep him there until he gives up, if it takes all day. Show him you can handle him.

The Butcher Bird's Larder.

It is possible that the butcher bird's "curious and cruel habit" of inhaling various creatures upon hedge thorns is his way of supporting his wife during her period of seclusion. Of many species the female is fed by the male on the nest, but the butcher bird's prey consists often of creatures which are too large to be eaten at a mouthful. Even if the male could always drag these carcasses to the nest it is obvious that the female could not eat them there; so the "larder" may have been hit upon as a happy device to get over the difficulty, the female flitting thither to help herself whenever she is hungry.—Country Life.

Easy Sailing.

Just grasp the main sheet with one hand and the tiller with the other, and if a flaw strikes ease up or bring 'er to an' loose the halyards, but look out for the gaff an' boom or the hull thing'll be in the water an' ye'll be upset; but if the wind is steady ye'll all right, unless ye're too slow in luffin', 'cause then ye'll be upset sure. Jump right in an' try it; but, remember, whatever ye do, don't jibe!

Bees and Ants.

Bees will place their honeycombs in any place regularly or irregularly shaped, and when they come to corners and angles they seem to stop and consider. Then they vary the shape of the cell, so that the space is exactly filled. It could not be done more satisfactorily if the whole thing had been worked out on paper beforehand. Ants make hard and smooth roads and drive tunnels compared to which man's efforts in making such things are insignificant.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Trifles.

There is no such thing in life as a trifle; every event and action, however unimportant seemingly, has a root below and a branch above which twist and turn into some other root and branch, making part of the great substance on and in which we live. Its presence and absence both affect the entire mass of which it forms a part.—Exchange.

Lombard Architecture.

The Lombard style of architecture, to which our Norman is allied, placed the support conspicuously in the wall. Of great thickness, with large blank spaces unplexed and prominent, the walls plainly tell their work and their capacity to do it. The ornamentation is subservient to the idea. Shallow recesses and paneling bring the surface of the wall into prominence. Where they are pierced for window or door the beveling and molding in perspective increase the idea of strength. The arched points to the depth. The circular arch indicates the solidity of the wall above. The circular windows were adapted to emphasize the notion of power.

In the Egyptian the wall is unnoticed, in the Greek it receded from view, in the Byzantine it played no part, in the Moresque it is chopped up and scattered, but in the Lombard, without buttress or pilaster, it asserted itself as the main element of support.—London Tablet.

Sacred Nuts of Japan.

Although well known to travelers and collectors of curiosities, the horn nut, or "sacred nut," of Japan was almost wholly unknown to fruit and nut dealers in this country prior to 1888, when a New York commission merchant received the first large consignment. They are called "sacred nuts" because used in certain forms of Japanese worship, where they are placed on the altar and ignited. Being very rich in oil, they burn with a hot, bluish flame and give off a peculiar odor, the fumes being supposed to rise as an acceptable incense to the gods. They grow under water and have a leaf like an American lily, the form of the nut itself being an almost exact counterpart of an Asian buffalo's head, drooping horns and all. In the raw state they are hard and tasteless, but when cooked the flavor resembles that of boiled chestnuts. They are said to retain their edible qualities for upward of twenty years.

Checks For the Communion Table.

The author of "The Sabbath in Puritan New England" mentions a custom which prevailed in several New England churches that made it the duty of the deacons to walk up and down the aisles of the church at the close of each service and deliver to every person who in their judgment was fitted to commune a metal check, which entitled him at the next celebration of the Lord's Supper to join in the sacred ordinance.

On the communion Sabbath it was the deacons' duty to see that every one who presented himself at the Lord's table had this check and to collect it from the communicant before passing to him the bread and wine.

HER MAJESTY

By Zoe A. Hutchings

Copyright, 1901, by Z. A. Hutchings

The prime minister mopped his forehead and the duchess dried her eyes. They had just been through a trying ordeal with her majesty the queen, who "would not marry the Duke Renard and would not marry the Prince Corray, state reasons or no state reasons." The minister and the duchess, the young queen's mother, had yielded and had sent her highness, triumphant, into the garden to make her proposal to her favored subject, the Earl of Norwood.

Queen Marie wandered along the garden paths until she espied Lord Norwood, and then she began plucking roses in embarrassment at his approach.

"Ah, my queen!" he said, bending his knee and pressing her hand to his lips. "You will hurt these tender hands with the cruel thorns. I shall break the roses for you."

"I have to tell you something," she said, with averted eyes.

"Do you really care? Have they consented? Oh, my queen, I never dared hope—"

"Consented to what, pray?" she said coldly. "I haven't told you anything."

"No," she stammered.

They walked on in silence between the rows of blooming azalea bushes. Suddenly she said, with an impatient movement of her hands:

"I wish I were a dairymaid."

"Why, your majesty?" he exclaimed, stopping short in amazement.

"Yes, I wish I were a dairymaid," she continued, "and I should be milking a good old cow, and then the farmer's lad would chance along, and he would look at me as if he were not afraid of me, and he would say: 'Oh, Marie—I mean, 'Oh, Tidy—I love you better than my wealth, better than my title—I mean, 'better than—than my plow. Will you be my wife?' And I would say—I might say, 'Yes,' if he would beg hard enough."

The queen hung her head and blushed.

"Would you say that?" Lord Norwood cried eagerly, seizing her hand. Then, remembering, he dropped it.

"I wish I were a farmer's lad!" he muttered impatiently. After an embarrassing pause, "You see, your majesty, we are slaves to custom, slaves to a sometimes annoying and severe master called etiquette and ceremony, and more abject slaves to our own miserable cowardice."

"Now, you will have to yield me the victory in the argument we had last night!" she said gleefully. "Confess!"

"YOUR HUMBLE SERVANT AWAITS YOUR PLEASURE," HE ANSWERED.

that I was right when I said that people in humble life are happier than we of pomp and ceremony. At last you will have to say that I am right and you are wrong." And she laughed triumphantly, clapping her hands and pelting him with azalea blossoms. "Say you are wrong quickly!" she ordered, seizing the sword from his scabbard and holding it above his head.

"No, I will not say it, not even to my queen," he answered, fascinated by her change of humor.

"What! Will not acknowledge you are in the wrong? Oh, no!"

"But I'm not in the wrong. It is the way in which we look at things whether our environments need order our happiness or not."

"Ah, you are cornered! Did you not say a moment ago that we are the slaves of custom, which amounts to the same thing?"

"Well, then, we'll set custom aside," he said, a trifle piqued at being caught. "Well, I suppose you to be a dairymaid, for you know you really are no better, being a mortal, and only elevated by—well, say by the chance of custom."

"Indeed!" she said icily, tossing her head. "If so you consider me, we may as well discontinue any further acquaintance!" And she turned about and walked toward the castle. He was not prepared for this development and was for a moment too stunned to do anything but stare after her. Recovering himself, he sprang to her side.

"Your majesty," he cried, "forgive me! I did not think—I would not have vexed you for the world. It was only for the sake of argument, you know."

"Then say you have lost the argument," she said potently.

"No, I haven't lost it, because you would not hear me out."

She started away again, but came back and said haughtily:

"Since you do not seem to understand my rank, I shall take the opportunity to let you know it and your own inferiority—your own rank!"

"Your humble servant awaits your most royal highness' pleasure!" he answered, bowing coldly.

She seemed disconcerted and, plucking some flowers, turned around at least three times.

"You must know—of course you know—it stands to reason that you know—I mean that you have always known how a queen must—it's the custom for her to—instead of the man—Why do you keep looking at me so? I don't believe you've winked your eyes once!"

The queen was almost in tears. "I shall look at that tree," he said, turning his head in another direction.

"Well, you know a queen has to, has always had to—oh, you do distract me so! Go behind that bush, where I can't see you."

He disappeared behind a tall bush, and she continued:

"It is supposed to be a great honor for a queen to bestow on a man, but sometimes the queen doesn't think it so. Sometimes the queen feels honored and would prefer to be asked. Can you see me?"

"Yes!" huskily.

"Look over the other way. But it is," she continued. "I must—oh, I cannot say it!" she cried, wringing her hands.

He rushed from behind the green foliage.

"Oh, my own; yes, you can! Just say it!" he pleaded. "Why, I could, easily!"

"Why don't you, then?" covering her face with her hands.

"Why—because—I—why, just say—just say—just anything!"

"Well, go back again, then," she said weakly. But when he disappeared she burst into angry tears.

"I'll not do it!" she cried, stamping her foot. "I'll never, never, never do it!" And she fled to the house.

The prime minister thought he had never seen quite so perverse and intractable a queen, while the duchess pleaded and commanded in vain.

"No; I'll not do the proposing! I'll stay an old maid!"

"We will allow her six months to make up her mind," said the minister wearily.

"Allow! Allow! Since when did you become queen? What! Six months, indeed! I'll be married this very minute!" And then the queen ran from the room in a passion, down the steps, into the garden.

"Where are you going?" asked the Earl of Norwood, meeting her.

"I'm going down to the village to marry the blacksmith!" she answered, hurrying past him. He ran after her and caught her hands.

"Oh, my queen! Oh, Marie! I love you, I love you better than my wealth, better than my title! Say that you love me! Say it quickly!"

He folded her in his arms. "I am as happy as a dairymaid!" she whispered.

"And I as a farmer's lad!"

The mistress of his heart put up with his oddities. He had regular nights for calling upon her, regular hours for coming and going, regular theater and club nights, etc. In fact she looked upon his regularity as something admirable.

Things had been going on in this way for two years, and finally the great crisis came. They were to be married. The day was fixed, the wedding clothes were made, the guests invited and the minister was engaged.

At the appointed time they were all assembled. The bride was dressed, the wedding presents were displayed, but the bridegroom came not. The bride wept and fainted, but it did no good. Finally some friends of the delinquent groom hurried away to see if he could

AMERICAN FLAG.

Plies From Balcony Of British War Office

Tickets Issued To The Coronation Of King Edward.

Difficult To Find Foreign Representatives In London.

London, August 8.—Despite the announced departure of all the special emissaries, the government has been somewhat embarrassed to find the few of these guests still left on hand.

While Whitehall held announced the formal dissolution of his embassy, Gen. Wilson, E. L. Bailey and J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., are still in London and the authorities, who were decidedly doubtful as to whether they should recognize their presence, finally settled the matter by sending all of them tickets to the abbey, but emphasizing the fact that the courtesy was extended in a strictly personal capacity.

The American embassy received a formal letter from the war office, asking it to lend an American flag to decorate the balcony at the war office. The flag was sent, and today it flies from the balcony.

Opening Of Coronation Day.

London, August 9, 4.35 a. m.—Salutes from the Tower of London and Hyde park are just booming at sunrise of coronation day. The day opens fine, but rather cloudy. There is promise of cool breezes, periods of fair weather, and passing local showers.

The exodus of society people from London has caused many vacancies among the allotted seats in the Abbey. These have been given to officials of governmental departments. It is said that two hundred tickets to the Abbey issued to members of the House of Commons were returned yesterday. These include tickets sent to the Irish members of the house, who have gone to Dublin.

The early trains to London are bringing throngs of people from the suburbs. Crowds already line the whole route of the procession.

The troops are marching in from their camps on the outskirts of the metropolis, or arriving by train from more distant points and are taking up their positions.

This is understood to mean that the business of George Fowler and Sons (Limited), Liverpool, is also to be acquired by Mr. G. E. Swift. on the streets of London and Paris. America is winning the title of bridge building of the world. A writer in The Century points out that all railroad bridges of more than 500 feet span have been built since 1870, and of course most of the structures of this kind have been put up in this country, where the greatest railroad development has been going on. These bridges are of iron and steel, and that is another specialty in which we excel. So there is nothing surprising in the fact that American firms are capturing big bridge contracts in all parts of the earth. They are having particular success in South Africa, where the war resulted in the destruction of most of the railroad bridges.—Troy, N. Y. Times.

A $5,000,000 American company has been formed to acquire, build and operate electric street railways in the republic of Peru.

Washington advises that United States Consul-General Hanna of Monterey, Mex., reports to the state department that the Coshuilla & Pacific Railroad company (an American property) has completed its line from Saltillo to Terreon, thus giving Saltillo—the capital of the state of Coahuilla—a second connection by rail with the United States.

American capital is going abroad, and we now hear that a company known as the Malaga Suburban Railways, Limited, with a capital of $2,500,000, has been organized to build an electric traction system through the Spanish province of Malaga, a distance of about 120 miles. The directors of the company are principally Canadians, but the money will come from this side of the Canadian border.—Daily Financial News.

American capital is seeking investment in Mexican properties today as never before. The exploitation of old Spanish mines that have yielded their millions and were abandoned when ancient methods failed continues to be an attractive field of investment, and the extension of railroad facilities to new sections is every month bringing new regions into connection with the markets of the world. Mexico's mining laws are frequently commended by American mining men, who visit this country. American capital, however, is not waiting upon the extension of transportation facilities in many instances.—Mexican Journal of Commerce.

The investment of American capital in the mines and industrial enterprises of Mexico is giving business to American manufacturers. Hubert and the British and German manufacturers have had this field entirely to themselves. Of the orders recently taken by Americans, and which formerly would have gone to England or Germany, may be mentioned one for placer dredges and all the electric plants and sawmills rolling stock, and sugar plantations machinery.

American business, American energy and American capital, are being felt for good all the world over.

The Vicious Latin Quarter.
"After two years of life in the Quarter Latin," says Charles Theodore Murray, "where I got my studies of French character for 'Mlle. Fouchette,' I may freely say that it is the worst place in the world to send a young man or woman if you entertain any hope of meeting him or her in heaven."

"I have had much experience in the role of journalist and have investigated the slums of London and Liverpool, know the 'Tenderloin' of New York and the 'attractions' at Berlin and Vienna, but for downright Satanic ingenuity of viciousness and gilded debauchery you must go to the Quarter Latin, for it is here that immorality is accepted as a virtue, and real virtue has no line of demarcation to distinguish it from immorality."

"No young man or young woman can survive such environment unimpaired, and many are ruined for life. That which, like London slums, is repulsive is not dangerous. It is attractive vice, sugar coated immorality, which is dangerous, and that is what young men and women find in the Quarter Latin."

How Coal Was First Named.
Curiously, the word coal was in use long before as well as long after the commencement of the coal trade, with a meaning quite different from that which it now has. The term originally belonged to wood fuel and was applied in particular to wood which had been charred, or what is now called charcoal.

When the trade in mineral coal began, this was usually distinguished by the singular name of sea coal. It would seem that from having been gathered in early times on the seashore, more especially of Northumberland, along with seaweed and other wreckage cast up by the waves, this peculiar substance was supposed to be of marine origin. From this circumstance and its resemblance to wood coal in color and burning properties it obtained the name of sea coal, by which it was so long and so widely known. Then in the course of time, as the new fuel gained upon and superseded the old, the simple name of coal became universally transferred to it.

Making It Plain.
A writer in the Lancet, says the Chicago Record-Herald, generously sets himself the task of giving out valuable information as to the amount of food one should eat. He proceeds to make the matter plain to the masses by saying: "If you desire to know how much you ought to eat per diem, you must first determine whether you are temperamentally anabolic or katobolic. Then, taking into account your age, sex, size, the amount of exercise you get and the temperature of the atmosphere, you should calculate the amount of food necessary to maintain the minimum weight of the body consistent with the best health of which you are capable."

Hereafter there should be no excuse whatever for overeating or under-eating.

The Discovery of Florida.
Juan Ponce de Leon, sailing from Porto Rico in search of new land, discovered Florida on March 27, 1512. He landed near St. Augustine, planted the cross and took possession in the name of the Spanish monarch. In 1713 a treaty ceding east and west Florida to Great Britain. In exchange for Havana and the western part of Cuba, was ratified. In 1781 part of Florida was ceded to Spain, and in 1783 Great Britain ceded east and west Florida to Spain. On Feb. 22, 1819, east and west Florida were ceded to the United States by treaty and purchase, Spain receiving $5,000,000.

Unconvinced.
A Presbyterian preacher in the central part of New York state tells this story of himself:

"It was Sunday morning, and I had started for church. The family were preparing to follow when the youngest, a five-year-old, protested, 'I do not want to go to church.'"

"I don't feel much like it myself, Fred, this morning," replied his mother, "but we must go. Father has to go to his gunge already, and he has to preach."

"Yes," said Fred, unconvinced, "but we have to listen, and that's worse."

ENTIRELY TOO CLEVER.

Experience of a Doctor in Prescribing For a Patient.

An anonymous physician who has written some "confessions" for the Independent tells this story about himself:

"I received a request to call from an old patient who was afraid she was taking scarlet fever. I responded at once. The patient was one of two elderly sisters whom I had attended for many years. I greeted her in the sitting room and noted her pulse while in the act of shaking hands with her. By some witty remark I contrived to make her laugh, which enabled me to see her tongue. Then I said in a playful tone: 'If you will get me a glass I will treat you to some of my patent soda water.' She did so. I put a tablet in the water and she drank it."

"I want you to know that I take pride in my original methods. I try to educate my patients to like, and not to dread, the visits of the doctor. In this case all of my work had been done without the direct knowledge of the patient and I felt very good over it. So I bade my patient goodbye with extreme cheerfulness."

"She looked surprised, and then said: 'Of course you will come upstairs and see my sister?' 'Not today,' I said. 'Give her my respects.' 'Why,' she said, looking mystified and startled, 'how strangely you talk?' 'Strangely?' I echoed. 'Why?' 'Because I sent for you to prescribe for my sister and you decline to see her.' It flashed over my mind in an instant. I had prescribed for the wrong sister. I was entirely too clever."

ACT QUICKLY.

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Portsmouth.

Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in times of danger. Backache is kidney danger. Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly. Cure all distressing, dangerous kidney ills.

Plenty of evidence to prove this: Mr. A. A. Shea, of No. 2 Langdon street, says:—"I had kidney trouble occasionally for two years or more. Whenever I contracted a cold or did any lifting bad spells came on me. I did not have much backache. It was the kidney secretions that distressed and annoyed me. While in pretty bad shape I was induced by testimony appearing in the papers to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial, and I went to Philbrick's pharmacy in the Franklin block and procured a box. After I stopped them I felt no inconvenience from urinary difficulty. The lameness had gone with it. I consider this a good recommendation for Doan's Kidney Pills."

SATURDAY, AUGUST 9, 1902.

With a man tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail, in a respectable no-license Massachusetts town, and a selectman of a New Hampshire town shot by the female chairman of the school board for interfering in school affairs, New England seems to be putting on Wild West airs to some extent.

Senator Carmack of Tennessee is intensely disgusted with the text book just issued by the republican national campaign committee. So are many of the democratic newspapers. No more satisfactory indication of the value of the text book and the effectiveness of the committee's work could be asked. Democratic approval would demonstrate its worthlessness, at the start.

The tarring and feathering of an objectionable resident by a mob of the "best citizens" of Marion, Mass., was a disgrace to the town, and will be more of a disgrace to the authorities if it is allowed to go unpunished. The victim of the affair may be, and probably is, about as mean a specimen of mankind as could be drummed up; but every one of that mob of best citizens is a worse criminal than that fellow has been charged with being, and differs in degree only—not in kind—from those best citizens of other places who occasionally burn negroes and other objectionable persons at the stake. Mob law is out of place in New England.

AN ABSURD PREDICTION.

The son of the former Secretary Reitz of the Transvaal, who recently arrived at Naples, is quoted by the Giornale d'Italia of Rome as declaring that war in the Transvaal will recommence within a few years.

If young Mr. Reitz said that, he talked very foolishly. The Boers staked their power against that of England, failed, and will never be in circumstances to repeat the attempt.

For twenty years after the peace that followed the disastrous Majuba Hill campaign the Boer republics were industriously making ready for the war that has just ended. This they could do legally and without incurring any penalty, being independent states. They had the entire income of their states to work with, and the completeness of their preparations was shown by the great number of common and small arms and the vast amount of ammunition they had on hand when hostilities began.

But the one-time Boer republics are now crown colonies of the British empire. The rulers are no longer the chosen representatives of the higher population, but appointees of the British crown. The revenue of the colonies can not now be used to procure arms and ammunition with which to make war on England's authority; to plan for such a war would now be to engage in a criminal conspiracy, instead of an act of patriotism as it was when the states were independent and an armed revolt on England's authority now would be rebellion, and not war.

When the late war—let us hope it will always be known as the last war—between the Boers and Britons began, the Boers had many advantages. They were thoroughly prepared, they fought on ground with which they were perfectly familiar, and among a population as friendly to them as it was bitterly hostile to their opponents; they were hard for men and better shots than the British troops, trained to the hardships and privations of the veldt, and they were far better led than the British. Opposed to these advantages England had one that was all-sufficient her overwhelming superiority in men and money, and though the Boers made a fight that won the admiration of the world, and kept it up almost to the limit of foolhardiness after all hope of success had gone, they failed at last, as it was from the start inevitable that they would do, if England proved really in earnest.

To assume that the Boers, defeated, disarmed, impoverished and short of political power, will attempt to regain by rebellion what they lost by war, is to assume that they are a little-headed set of visionary enthusiasts, and that they have never been suspected of being. A Boer rebellion, if it ever comes, will be an event of the distant future, and under vastly changed circumstances from those now existing; and not "a few years hence," as young Mr. Reitz is said to predict.

Perhaps he has said nothing of the kind.

A large number of democrats are still wondering how as bright a talker as W. J. Bryan could be fooled by 16 to 1.

Galveston, Texas, is sure that Venice ought to survive a comparatively small disaster like the loss of a Campanile.

Of course those statesmen who fulfilled against hospitality to Prince Henry as a form of toadyism did not get any scarpings.

In order to insure against overtaxing the king's nerves, the small boy with the cannon cracker will, of course, be barred at the coronation.

Life insurance companies now advise their clients to participate in South American revolutions instead of patronizing health resorts.

The farmers are not buying as many gold bricks as they used to, but American millionaires continue to play poker with strangers on ocean liners.

Speaker Henderson says that the democrats are, as usual, divided. The local issues in several states indicate that they are not only divided, but subdivided.

An English actress became naturalized in order that she might run a cattle ranch. Thus does America progress in recognition as headquarters for art.

And now the army is unprepared for attack by the navy. Somehow, armies in America, in England, everywhere, appear to have the habit of not being ready.

The fact that the king has so far progressed toward health as to make a coronation possible is a matter for more profound rejoicing in England than the coronation itself.

Mr. Carmack should not be too sure of democratic success in New England until he has observed the demonstrations during President Roosevelt's visit to this part of the country.

Efforts will be made to induce Prince Chen to linger in New York city. Possibly it would be just as well to let him go through the metropolis rapidly. It would be unfortunate for him to accept Mr. Devery's campaign as typical of American statesmanship.

General Jake Smith has at last shown that he can "take his medicine" when his turn comes. The solitary exposure with which he accepts punishment is a disappointment to those who regarded him as a tornado of wrath. Whatever his previous career may have been, his present attitude reflects credit on army discipline.

LALOR IN THE SHOW GIRL.

Frank Laylor is the newest of the younger comedians to make a decided hit in New York this summer.

When Edward E. Rice contemplated his production of The Show Girl for Wallack's theatre, what it has just completed its long run, he was at a loss to select a comedian who could meet the peculiar requirements of the principal comedy role.

Naturally the impulse of the veteran manager was to engage a man of established reputation, whose name would attract and give strength to the presentation, but with Rice's proverbial instinct for young and new blood, he sidetracked the big men and selected Laylor for the part.

Faithful to this Laylor had been appearing in favor comedy organizations and in vaudeville, and had never attempted so pretentious a role, on which the fate of the entire performance rested.

During rehearsals the usual misgivings were felt and various names were suggested, but Rice refused to listen and only whispered "wait."

Edward E. Rice was right, for when the initial performance was given in May at Wallack's, the comedian, unknown to Broadway audiences, made a hit of unusual proportions, and the result was that the Rice Amusement company, who control The Show Girl, have secured Mr. Laylor for a term of years.

Mr. Hedges said that he would back his team to the extent of $50,000.

(What Is Being Talked About In Washington.)

Political News And Gossip Of The Day.

Breezy Letter From The Special Correspondent Of The Chronicle.

Washington, August 6. The amount of banking done last week, according to Dun's Commercial Review, at the leading cities of the country is reported as the heaviest on record, indicating unusual commercial activity and business prosperity. The bank exchanges amounted to $2,909,000,000, a gain of 20 per cent. over those of the corresponding weeks of last year and 38 per cent. over 1899.

Judge Griggs, chairman of the democratic congressional committee should bear constantly in mind what happened to Chairman Jones of the democratic National committee. The Honorable James K. has long been renowned as a great talker and prophet, and the judge is likewise developed the talk habit.

The good housewives will be glad to know that the department of agriculture has brought about a solution of the bed bug problem. This work of the administration takes the last puff of wind out of the opposition democratic campaign sails. The solution in question upon being applied to the beds where the bugs congregate instantly kills the latter.

The large amount of hot air which has resulted thus far from the Bailey-Penfield incident suggests that the Texas statesman's senatorial district must include that township of the Lone Star state which has had no rain for three years.

The valued New York World says that "Prosperity is not all." It is not all, of course, because we have it with us and we are always looking for something more than that which we have. It came, however, pretty close to being "all" in 1896. It is rather more today than the democratic party has to offer.

Missouri is the home of the great Kansas City platform, equalled only in notoriety by the Chicago platform. Under this latter freak, silver orators and editors staked their reputation, their lives and their honor upon the statements that farm products would be nearly valueless and that the prices of grain would further depreciate by one-half if free silver was not adopted. Many of these same mouthpieces of sentiment are still "gloating" the people, instructing them and predicting to them, but they do not refer to 1896, and they do not refer to old speeches and editorials of that year; they do not compare the prices of grain then and now under a continued gold standard. Many farmers who remember 1896 and its low farm prices must smile at the present Missouri endorsement of 16 to 1 as a live issue.

Democrats who are advocating tariff reform as the paramount issue have certainly considerable persistence if not courage. With the disastrous effect upon the country of the operation of the Wilson low tariff law in such vivid remembrance it would seem that politicians should fight shy of free trade and low tariff for at least a generation.

It is not correct to speak of the democratic party as "big." The party is "they," they, however, are IT in the game of political tag.

In commenting upon the divergent wings of the democracy, Mr. Bryan remarks that in 1901 "there would be harmony—in two groups." Doubtless there will be democratic harmony in the two wings of that party, but each wing will be beating at the other for all it is worth.

In other words, as we understand it, the democratic party has no issue, no much, no present, no future, and a past drawn at least part of it which anybody can remember anything about.

The Chicago Chronicle, a democrat, but an anti-Bryan democrat says "Mr. Bryan seems unable to comprehend the fact that he is not a member of the democratic party and is not entitled to any share in its councils." Not quite so fast, Mr. Chronicle, Mr. Bryan has undoubtedly lost much prestige since 1896, but he was the recognized leader of the party during the last two national campaigns and he polled nearly a million more votes than any other democrat who ever ran for the presidency. To lawfully rule Mr. Bryan out of the democratic party, the organizers will have, first, to show that they can recognize and then they will have to show that they can nominate an anti-Bryan candidate on an anti-Bryan platform. The sound money element of the democracy has gained greatly in strength in the last two years but whether it will be able to wrest the party machine from Bryan remains to be seen.

DOHERTYS WIN.

Englishmen Defeat Ward And Davis In Tennis Doubles.

Americans Take First Set, But Afterward Weaken.

Victors Won Because Of Steadier And More Consistent Playing.

New York, August 8.—In the international lawn tennis doubles today, the Dougherty brothers of England defeated Ward and Davis, the American players, 3-6, 10-8, 6-3, 6-4.

The match was played on the courts of the Crescent Athletic club at Bay Ridge, and the result losses to the American team, the international championship, which was won two years ago at Longwood, Mass.

The first set went to Ward and Davis, 6-3, but the second, third and fourth were scored by the Dohertys at 10-8, 6-3, 6-4. Fully 7000 spectators witnessed the match.

In the first set, Ward and Davis hit the ball very hard, and took the set before the Dohertys had fully steadied down to their game. When the second set opened, the Britons had got their bearings, and played the ball in Davis' court, scoring continually on his errors into the net, or beyond the boundary line of the court.

At the end of the second set, the Englishmen outbatted the Americans and by actual steadiness won the set.

After this set, the Americans faded from the contest. Davis got in his terrible smash occasionally with great effect and scored many aces on service. His errors, however, were too numerous, and as Ward also weakened at the end, the Englishmen played out the final set about as they pleased.

Where Smoking Is a Sin.
Palgrave, in his interesting book describing his journey to the sacred city of Mecca, gives an amusing account of his conversation with a mollah.

On asking the reverend gentleman which he considered the most deadly of all sins the holy man replied: "Smoking the shameful."

"And next, O son of the prophet?" "Drinking."

"Are these the two greatest sins, father?" "Verily, my son."

"And murder?" "Ah, that's nothing—nothing. It's forgivable."

"And stealing?" "Ah, that's forgivable too."

"But smoking?" "It is the unforgivable crime," replied the mollah sternly and looking keenly at the fictitious Mohammedan.

And this is the Afghan's creed. Murder and theft are forgivable crimes, but for smoking and drinking there is no redemption.

The Man With the Fiddle.
The little old man fiddled very hard as he stood near the curbstone in Twenty-third street. The passerby looked at him curiously. Some of them smiled. No one gave him a penny.

Presently he was seen to totter and then to fall, but he kept on fiddling just the same, even when he lay prone upon his back. A man helped him to his feet. He never missed a note. A little boy who had been regarding him with keen interest went up to him. Suddenly the bow hung poised and motionless. The little old man had run down. The boy bought him a quarter, however. The vendor showed him how to start the fiddle up again, and the two went off together, happy and contented.—New York Press.

Lawyer (to timid young woman)—Have you ever appeared as witness in a suit before?
Young Woman (blushing)—Yes, sir, of course.

Lawyer—Please state to the jury just what suit it was.
Young Woman (with more confidence)—It was nun's veiling, shirred down the front and trimmed with a lovely blue, with hat to match—

Portrait Of Washington Displayed To English Masons.

Earl Of Warwick Pays Tribute To Our First President.

Says He Is Held In Deep Veneration In England.

London, August 8.—Ambassador Choate this afternoon unveiled a portrait of Washington in masonic regalia, in the presence of many Masons, in Freemasons' hall.

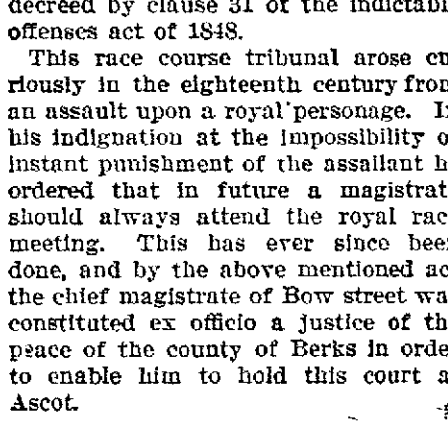

The Earl of Warwick, deputy grand-master of the Freemasons of England, who presided, paid a tribute to Washington, in which he referred to the great veneration in which the first American president was held in England and his consistent remembrance of fellow Masons during the war for American independence.

Mr. Choate read a eulogy on Washington.

Quick Justice at Ascot.
Not only the horses, but the powers of the law, says the London Chronicle, are swift at Ascot, for the course has a special tribunal for the punishment of cricketers. No sooner is the pick-pocket, welsler or ticket snatcher arrested than he is standing in a little room in the royal stand, where the evidence is heard and the verdict and sentence pronounced before the offender fully realizes that he is caught. Nowhere else does punishment so swiftly follow crime as at this court, which is decreed by clause 31 of the indictable offenses act of 1848.

This race course tribunal arose curiously in the eighteenth century from an assault upon a royal personage. In his indignation at the impossibility of instant punishment of the assailant he ordered that in future a magistrate should always attend the royal race meeting. This has ever since been done, and by the above mentioned act the chief magistrate of Bow street was constituted ex officio a justice of the peace of the county of Berks in order to enable him to hold this court at Ascot.

Worms?

Many children are troubled with worms, and treated for something else. A few doses of True's Worm Elixir will expel a worm if there is one, and prove a valuable tonic if there are no worms. Sent by mail to Dr. J. F. TRUE & CO., 400, N. 4th St., St. Paul, Minn.

RIPANS

The simplest remedy for indigestion, constipation, biliousness and the many ailments arising from a disordered stomach, liver or bowels is Ripans Tablets. They have been plied with wonderful results, and their timely aid removes the necessity of calling a physician for many little ills that best mankind. They go straight to the seat of the trouble, relieve the distress, cleanse and purge the affected parts, and give the system a general toning up. The Five Cent packet is enough for ordinary use. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for years. All druggists sell them.

"I don't know who started the story about the summer girl and her many engagements, but I do know from experience that it's pretty hard for the summer girl to get engaged once, let alone many times, nowadays. Look at that!" she went on, pointing to a group in the distance. "Look at that solitary specimen of manhood and all those girls! Look how he is sitting

BEST TENNIS OF THE WEEK.

Semi-Finals in the Wentworth House Tournament at New Castle.

The semi-finals in the tennis tournament at the Wentworth Friday brought out the best tennis of the week, both in singles and doubles. For a time it looked as though there would be no game owing to the steady downpour of rain, but it cleared and the dirt soon dried sufficiently for one match in the forenoon. This was between Hackett and Irving Wright and White. The former won on straight sets.

In the afternoon between showers, the hottest contested match of the week was played by Leonard and Neeley. Neeley played fast tennis in the first set and was driven to his limit by Leonard, but finally won out, 2 to 1. In the other two sets, Leonard's form and steady smashing proved effective and he took both. In the doubles, Leonard and Neeley beat Hackett and Cunningham in a well played set, the latter taking the first set, but succumbing to the fine work of the other team in the other two sets.

Heals and Irving Wright had an easy win from Terry and Howard, and today at three o'clock they will meet Leonard and Neeley in the finals and some excellent tennis is looked for. The finals in the singles commenced at ten o'clock and Hackett and Leonard were the contesting pair with the odds in favor of Hackett. The score: Semi-finals—Hackett beat I. Wright, 6-3, 4-1; Leonard beat Neeley, 5-7, 6-3, 4-2.

Doubles—semi-finals, Leonard and Neeley beat Hackett and Cunningham, 4-6, 6-2, 4-1.

Heals Wright and Irving Wright beat Terry and Howard, 6-3, 6-3.

OBITUARY.

George H. Clark.

George H. Clark, senior member of the firm of F. E. Harding & Co., wholesale fish dealers at 20 T wharf, died suddenly at his residence on Broadway, Chelsea, yesterday morning. For nearly a week he was obliged to remain away from business, but it was thought to be nothing more than a slight indisposition, and Thursday evening he was out driving. The cause of his sudden taking off was heart disease.

Mr. Clark has been identified with the fish business for twenty-five years, and was one of the most prominent dealers on T wharf. The news of his death was received with profound sorrow by his business associates, with whom he was very popular. The flags on all the boats on the fish pier were displayed at half-mast as an emblem of mourning, and most of the fishing schooners in port also lowered their colors to half-mast.

Mr. Clark was sixty-three years of age. He leaves a wife. Funeral services will be held on Monday, after which the remains will be taken to Portsmouth for interment.

Interment.—Boston Globe, 9th inst.

Mr. Clark was a native of this city, having been born at Christian Shore. He leaves one sister, Mrs. Mary Scrimgeour, widow of William Scrimgeour, who resides on Pleasant street. He leaves, also, many other relatives in Portsmouth. Mr. Clark had been in the custom of passing his summers here.

THERE WAS NO QUORUM.

Meeting Of City Government Scheduled For Friday Evening Postponed.

The municipal meeting scheduled for Friday evening was unavoidably postponed on account of the failure of several aldermen to appear.

After waiting until nearly nine o'clock for the absent members, the mayor called the meeting to order, and the roll was called by City Clerk Pierce. No quorum being present, the meeting stood adjourned until Tuesday evening, next at eight o'clock.

TWO NEW OFFICERS.

It is rumored that the police commissioners have definitely decided to increase the present police force by the appointment of two new men to fill the vacancies caused by resignations. A motionman on the local doctrine road is an applicant for one of the positions, and is said to be well thought of by the commissioners.

MARINES TAKE FRENCH LEAVE.

Word was telephoned to police headquarters this morning from the marine barracks at the navy yard, that Private Sheldon and Downe had "jumped" the barracks on Friday evening and that towards their capture would be sent over on the next boat.

STOLEN TEAM.

The police have been notified by Chief

Healy of Manchester of the theft of a horse and carriage in Manchester, August 6. The outfit was the property of Frank X. Chenette, a livery man. The horse was a black mare about twelve years old, weighing about 850 pounds, off hind foot, white and a white spot on the forehead. The carriage was a Stangebug buggy with the rear wheels lower than the front. A man giving the name of George Maxwell told the team. He was accompanied by a girl about seventeen years old, who claimed to be Maxwell's wife.

DEAL ON FOOT?

The attempt to hold a meeting of the city government Friday evening proved a failure, although the mayor and one of the members of the upper board hunted the town for an hour to get one of the missing members of the board. Those absent were Aldermen Wood, A. H. Adams, Locke and Clarke.

The absence of the aldermen is believed to have been pre-arranged so that no action could be taken on the Fitzgerald statue. It seems that there is a deal on foot to run the statue matter through both boards, despite the big protest entered by the citizens of the city against the Kelly model.

Another meeting has been called for Tuesday evening.—Manchester Union.

A MODEL BALL PLAYER.

Sporting Life: "Walter Woods, Jersey City's utility man, is a graduate of Phillips-Exeter academy, having been awarded his diploma in 1892. He is regarded as the strictest man in the Eastern league respecting his mode of living. He neither drinks, smokes nor uses tobacco in any form, and never utters a curse word. He is what may be termed a model ball player, both from a moral and a playing standpoint."

CITY IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY.

Important Meeting Next Tuesday Evening to Arrange For a Lawn Party.

An impression which is entirely erroneous seems to have got abroad that the City Improvement society has lapsed into a disorganizing hibernation. Far from it, the promoters of the society intend to keep it moving and already have under consideration plans for widening its scope and increasing its influence and usefulness.

Next Tuesday afternoon there will be an important meeting of the organization at the city rooms.

The members of the society and any who are interested in the work are requested to assemble there at three o'clock to aid in the arrangements for a lawn party to be given for the benefit of the society.

GOOD APPLE PROSPECTS.

The apple prospects are good in most sections. Last year was an off year for the crop, therefore during the last seven months only 22,116 barrels have been exported from Boston, whereas in a corresponding period in 1901 the shipment was 73, 830. The last week has seen favorable reports of the apple crop coming in from all parts of New England, especially Maine, and also from Nova Scotia, although a greater part of the latter no doubt will go by way of Halifax. With a crop like that of 1900 and several thousand barrels for each of the large steamships, shippers may well become optimists.
